

Scoot, run, bolt, flee.

Gas leaks are no good for me.

If you smell gas
it's time to go.

Leave the scene
and call PECO.

Natural gas is great for cooking. It saves on the cost of heating. And, like all forms of energy, there are some precautions of which you should be aware.

PECO injects odorant in its natural gas to give it a distinctive, rotten-egg odor. If you smell natural gas (or see downed power lines), leave the area immediately. Then call PECO at 1-800-841-4141. Any time. Any day.

In the event of a potential gas leak:

- Extinguish all open flames. Do not use matches or lighters and do not attempt to light a pilot or start an appliance
- Do not touch any phones, switches, thermostats or appliances. All devices, including battery operated equipment – e.g., cell phones, electronic garage door openers – can cause sparks
- Do not start or turn off any motorized equipment. Abandon any motorized equipment you may be operating
- Do not attempt to find the source of the leak or to repair a leak

Smell Rotten Eggs? Dash & Dial.
800-841-4141 - 24/7

Learn more at peco.com/GasSafety